BACKGROUND

Department of Physics at the University of Lucknow was established in 1921 and is renowned for its long tradition of excellence in both teaching and research. Over the years, the department has pioneered advanced courses such as Electronics, Lasers and Optoelectronics, and Materials Science, and contributed significantly to experimental and theoretical physics through original publications, national and international collaborations. It boasts a strong alumni presence in national institutions and media, and provides state-of-the-art research facilities such as XRD, AFM, XRF and UTM for its faculty and students. Department is organizing a one-day National Symposium on Recent Advances in Material Science & Technology on December 6, 2025, featuring invited lectures and poster presentations (4 ft × 3 ft). Abstracts of 250–350 words, formatted in Times New Roman (12 pt, 1.5 spacing), are invited for submission.
