

The Vice-Chancellor, University of Lucknow, Prof. S.P. Singh is an outstanding teacher, brilliant academician and excellent administrator. Prof Singh graduated from Gorakhpur University in humanities and joined the University of Lucknow from where he did his post graduation in Economics in 1976. Subsequently, he was awarded Ph.D. degree in Economics on Rural Development. He has 40 years of experience in higher education. He held the post of Principal for about 26 years and later became Professor at autonomous National PG College, Lucknow. Dr. Singh has been a Member, Coordinator and Expert of various Committees at University, State and National levels. He has executed 2 Research Projects and has supervised 10 research students for their Ph.D. He has published 33 research publications in International and National Journals and has 8 Books to his credit. These books are related to the relevant topics such as Agricultural Economics, Economic Thought and Growth. Rural development, Administration in higher education, and Principles of Economics are the main areas of his specialization. He has been awarded with six Governmental and Non- governmental Awards and Fellowships.

He is a Fellow of six Academic Institutions and Societies. He has been a Mentor/Resource-person/Key-note speaker in many Seminars and Workshops. He has visited several places world-wide such as Paris, Brussels, Luxembourg for International academic pursuits.

He has wide and comprehensive experience in Academics as well as Administrative activities, and has established Milestone achievements for Professional Courses, Infrastructure, and State-of-the-art facilities in academic institution. Throughout his career he has been concerned about the all round development of students and creating an environment for excellence in Higher education.