Webinar on E-Learning: Need of the hour for educational administrators

During this unprecedented time where in Covid -19, Pandemic has hit the world, the biggest challenge for the educational institutions is to keep our students occupied and busy in their ongoing educational courses continuously. It is possible only by exercising various innovative ways of online teaching/ learning so that the students do not suffer. and by means of conducting innovative course of actions or continuing such E- learning is one of the most sought after means of online teaching. However, the University of Lucknow has tried to take a lead and committed in organising online sessions and webinars in the interest and benefit of the students.

One such webinar was organised by E-Content Modalities Compliance Committee, University of Lucknow on May 02, 2020 on E-Learning: Need of the hour for educational administrators. It was presided over by Prof. Alok Kumar Rai, Vice Chancellor, University of Lucknow who inaugurated the webinar followed by a welcome note given by Prof. Poonam Tondon, Head of Department Physics, University of Lucknow. This was followed by the expertise and experience shared by different speakers.

The first speaker Prof. Sujit Kumar Dubey, Director, Institute of Management Studies, Banaras Hindu University, Faculty of Management Studies, Varanasi began the session with the introduction of e-learning concept. He highlighted the fact that student's motivation is a key factor in adaptation of technology in the field of education and also described the ways to motivate the students to adapt to e-learning. Dr. Kiran Lata Dangwal, Additional Dean Academic Cell, University of Lucknow then took the charge who laid lots of emphasis and elaborated on the concepts of e-learning as well as e-content. She explained the need for e-learning and as to how important it is in present scenario and even subsequently how we can reap benefit. She firmly advocated the integration of technology with education.

Later on Dr. Vinita Prakash, Principal IT College, Lucknow, explained the methodology of adopting and adapting to e-learning and teaching under existing circumstances. In her presentation, she made it very clear that the adaptation of technology is not only necessary for students but also for teachers. She focused on making teachers more technology-friendly along with students. We have received more than a thousand registrations from different universities including some international participants belonging to educational institutions.

The online webinar seminar on e-learning was concluded by Prof. Awadhesh Tripathi, Department of Commerce, University of Lucknow with the vote of thanks. The participants were highly satisfied at the end of the session and were convinced with the fact that E-Learning is a need and order of the day.
